Last weekend we priests with the Bishop gathered for Our Priest Convocation which takes place every four years. Overall, it was an enjoyable time for fellowship and venting. Aside from the usual conversations and presentations, we had the opportunity to “window shop” some clerical vestments that were available for sale. Most of the older priests thought these vestments were on display from a church museum, while the younger priests may have seriously considered purchasing clothing which reflected a more traditional aesthetics. Clearly the seller was responding to a trend that younger priests are interested in more traditional garb which tends to be highly ornate, lacey, and with accompanying caps with tassels. Certainly the trend to move away from basic, homemade looking priests liturgical clothing of the 1980’s to more elegant and refined vestments of today reflects something of the movement of contemporary liturgical styles. We have moved away from the “grass roots” liturgy that developed in this country after Vatican II to a more “top down” liturgy associated with the traditional church. Many people probably applaud this development.

I was recently reading an article from 1982, a “grass roots” year, which mentioned the use of pottery Communion cups which were common after Vatican II but are not allowed in our current Masses. Communion cups and chalices are meant to be made of a precious metal not pottery. The precious metal reflects the dignity of what the Communion cup contains, the Blood of Christ. So why do I miss the old pottery Communion cups? It is the same reason why I miss the old basic hand-woven vestments; we have removed the humanity out of the liturgy. This is a complex topic which most parishioners pass through unaware. But, the use of pottery Communion cups was meant to reveal to the people and the priests the common calling that we are all challenged to live the Gospel as exemplified from the God who became man and lived a common life. The pottery communion cups are common and simple, humble and accessible. They speak to us of the Love that comes from a God who calls all people, without distinction, to join in His life giving sacrifice. These same cups also reveal the challenge that this God walks among us, calling us to be like Him. He is not a golden icon, nor a golden chalice, so exalted that we only gaze in wonder. He is one of us and lives among the homemade and the common.

One might wonder how long it will be before altar rails are required in all churches. The push to separate God from His people is a strong one, embraced by most of us. A life with God on the other side is far more easy than a life with God our side, showing us how to really live. We, of course, never want to forget that we must revere God and bow down in worship before Him. Still, we must balance our worship with the challenge that God is intimately a part of our lives, calling us to rise to new life.

Question: What is the story behind the rosary?

Answer: The rosary is a sacred and popular Catholic devotion, but its origins are mysterious. Prayer beads to facilitate meditation began in the early ages of the Church. In the early medieval period, bead strings were used to count Hail Marys or Our Fathers. A tradition has developed that the rosary in its current form was given to St. Dominic by the Blessed Mother. However, the earliest biographies of the saint do not include this story. In the Middle Ages, the prayers were grouped into 50 Hail Marys with verses from Psalms and vignettes from the lives of Jesus and Mary. By the 16th century, the Joyful, Sorrowful, and Glorious Mysteries were established.

The rosary rose to prominence in the late 1500s. The Turkish Empire was spreading across eastern Europe, and pirates were raiding Christian ships. The Christian nations of Europe rallied for a great battle at sea. Pope St. Pius V urged all Christians to pray the rosary for victory. While vastly outnumbered, the Christian fleet was victorious at the Battle of Lepanto. The pope established October 7th as the feast of the Holy Rosary. Later, all of October would come to be known as the Month of the Rosary.

What if today was your last day on earth?

Cecilia Pigg | Aleteia.org

I’ll never forget the last time I saw my Nana alive. My parents and siblings and I were in Arizona, spending time with her and my Grandpa in their home. She had ALS, and it had progressed such that she could no longer talk, eat, or walk on her own.

I was brushing my teeth at the bathroom sink on the last day of our visit. As my Grandpa wheeled her past the bathroom, I came out, toothbrush in hand, and said goodnight again. She smiled big, her mouth filling with saliva bubbles she could not easily swallow, and gave me a tiny nod and wave. A few hours later, I saw the flashing red and white lights of the ambulance through the window of the bedroom I was sleeping in. We got out of bed to say goodbye to her body one last time before they wheeled her away.

Seeing her lying there on her bed, but no longer with us, was one of the most surreal experiences of my life. Just a few hours before she was smiling at me, alive. Now, she was gone.

The anniversary of her death is coming up, and it reminds me to take a second to look at my life every year. We are not guaranteed any amount of time on this earth. As Jesus says, you do not know the day nor the hour, so stay awake (Matthew 25:13).

How can we stay awake to what’s important in life?

Take a minute today to think about your death. Not in a morbid or pitiful way, but in an honest, concrete way. You will die. And you don’t know when. So, consider the following questions. If today was your last day on earth, would you be ready to die?

First, here are practical things to focus on for the good of your body:

- What do you want your funeral to be like? Think about if you want certain hymns sung or an open casket for visitation.
- Where do you want to be buried? If you have a preference of cemetery or who you want to be buried next to, think about that.
- Does someone you know and trust know the answers to the previous questions so that they can take care of things for you?

Next, here are practical things to focus on for the good of your soul:

- When was the last time you went to confession? Might as well find a time to go this weekend.
- Who do you still need to forgive? Now is the time to try to repair relationship; don’t wait another decade.
- How much time do you spend on small or petty frustrations throughout the day? If you have a habit of getting too worked up about life’s minor annoyances, put them into perspective today.

There is no time like the present to consider the bigger picture of your life:

- Are you living the way you want to be remembered?
- What do you spend your time on every day?
- What do you wish were different about your life right now?

All of the Halloween decorations starting at us in stores right now makes for a perfect time to do some self-reflection. Memento mori is a Latin phrase that means remember death. That fake skeleton hanging from the window in your neighbor’s house can be a subtle reminder to memento mori. Take stock of your life this week. What you do while you’re alive matters, so make the most of it.

Sharing the Gospel - The widow in Jesus’ story never gave up. She needed help. She kept asking for help over and over until the judge gave her what she needed. God is so much more loving than the judge in Jesus’ story. If you need help, you can ask God over and over. Don’t give up. Tell God when you are hurt. Tell God when you need help. He listens carefully to you, and he enjoys helping children who love him.

Prayer - Dear God, thank you for caring about me and listening to my prayers.

Mission for the Week - Many children do not have homes or shoes or beds. Ask God to show you how to help them.
El fin de semana pasado, los sacerdotes con el Obispo nos reunimos para la Convocación de Nuestro Sacerdote, que tiene lugar cada cuatro años. En general, fue un momento agradable para el compañerismo y la ventilación. Además de las conversaciones y presentaciones habituales, tuvimos la oportunidad de "comprar escaparates" algunas vestimentas de oficina que estaban disponibles para la venta. La mayoría de los sacerdotes mayores pensaban que estas vestimentas se exhibían en un museo de la iglesia, mientras que los sacerdotes más jóvenes podrían haber considerado seriamente comprar ropa que reflejara una estética más tradicional. Claramente, el vendedor estaba respondiendo a una tendencia de que los sacerdotes más jóvenes están interesados en un atuendo más tradicional que tiende a ser muy ornamental, de encaje y con gorras con borlas. Ciertamente, la tendencia a alejarse de la vestimenta litúrgica sacerdotal básica de aspecto casero de la década de 1980 a vestimentas más elegantes y refinadas de hoy refleja algo del movimiento de los estilos litúrgicos contemporáneos. Nos hemos alejado de la liturgia de "base" que se desarrolló en este país después del Vaticano II a una liturgia más "de arriba abajo" asociada con la iglesia tradicional. Mucha gente probablemente aplaude este desarrollo.

Hace poco estuve leyendo un artículo de 1982, un año de "base", que mencionaba el uso de tazas de comunión de cerámica que eran comunes después del Vaticano II pero que no están permitidas en nuestras misas actuales. Los vasos y los cálices de comunión están hechos de un metal precioso, no de cerámica. El metal precioso refleja la dignidad de lo que contiene la copa de la Comunión, la Sangre de Cristo. Entonces, ¿por qué extraño las viejas tazas de comunión de cerámica? Es la misma razón por la que extraño las viejas vestimentas básicas tejidas a mano; Hemos eliminado a la humanidad de la liturgia. Este es un tema complejo que la mayoría de los feligreses pasan sin darse cuenta. Pero, el uso de tazas de comunión de cerámica estaba destinado a revelar a la gente y a los sacerdotes el llamado común de que todos somos desafiados a vivir el Evangelio como lo ejemplifica el Dios que se hizo hombre y vivió una vida en común. Las tazas de comunión de cerámica son comunes y simples, humildes y accesibles. Nos hablan del amor que proviene de un Dios que llama a todas las personas, sin distinción, a unirse en su vida dando sacrificios. Estas mismas copas también revelan el desafío que este Dios camina entre nosotros, llamándonos a ser como Él. No es un ícono dorado, ni un cálice dorado, tan exaltado que solo miramos maravillados. Él es uno de nosotros y vive entre lo casero y lo común.

Uno podría preguntarse cuánto tiempo pasará antes de que se requieran rieles de altar en todas las iglesias. El impulso para separar a Dios de su pueblo es fuerte, abrazado por la mayoría de nosotros. Una vida con Dios al otro lado es mucho más fácil que una vida con Dios a nuestro lado, mostrándonos cómo vivir realmente. Nosotros, por supuesto, nunca queremos olvidar que debemos reverenciar a Dios e inclinarnos en adoración ante Él. Aún así, debemos equilibrar nuestra adoración con el desafío de que Dios es una parte íntima de nuestras vidas, llamándonos a elevarnos a una nueva vida.

LAS CONMEMORACIONES DE LA SEMANA
Domingo: 29º Domingo del Tiempo Ordinario; Domingo de la Misión Mundial
Martes: San Juan Pablo II, papa
Miércoles: San Juan Capistrano, sacerdote
Jueves: San Antonio María Claret, obispo

MEDITACIÓN DEL EVANGÉLIO
La liturgia de este domingo se centra en la oración y en cómo no debemos desanimarnos jamás de orar ni de insistir a Dios con nuestras plegarias. El Papa Francisco nos ayuda con los siguientes consejos e insiste en la confianza que se debe tener al orar: “Porque ninguna oración queda sin ser escuchada, muchas de nuestras oraciones no obtienen ningún resultado. ¿Cuántas veces hemos pedido y no hemos obtenido, llamado y encontrado una puerta cerrada? [Sin embargo], podemos estar seguros de que Dios responderá. La única incertidumbre se debe a los tiempos, pero no tenemos dudas de que Él responderá. Tal vez sea necesario insistir durante toda la vida, pero Él responderá. Nos lo ha prometido”. El relato de Jesús sobre la viuda y el juez afirma lo que el Papa Francisco nos asegura; Dios siempre escucha nuestros ruegos y da lo que conviene a la salvación de cada persona. “¿Acaso Dios no hará justicia a sus elegidos si clamaron a él día y noche, mientras él dejaba que esperaran? Yo les aseguro que les hará justicia.” (Lucas 18:7-8). Reflexionar en la justicia en términos bíblicos es hablar de la misericordia infinita de Dios. Entonces, para crecer en justicia y misericordia los unos para con los otros, se necesita un profundo crecimiento en la vida de oración. Para un diálogo y encuentro profundo con Dios ¿qué se debe hacer? La Santa Teresa de Calcuta decía que: “Sin un corazón lleno de amor y sin unas manos generosas, es imposible curar a un hombre enfermo de soledad. El amor es un fruto que madura en todas las estaciones y que se encuentra al alcance de todas las manos”.

St. Hilarion (October 21)

Saint Hilarion the Great, as he is sometimes called, was born at Palestine in 291. After his conversion to Christianity, he spent some time with Saint Anthony of Egypt, another holy man drawn to solitude. Hilarion lived a life of hardship and simplicity in the desert, where he also experienced spiritual dryness that included temptations to despair. At the same time, miracles were attributed to him.

As his fame grew, a small group of disciples wanted to follow Hilarion. He began a series of journeys to find a place where he could live away from the world. He finally settled on Cyprus, where he died in 371 at about age 80.

In the face of these very real questions, it’s important to recall the words of the prophet Isaiah, that God’s thoughts “are not our thoughts.” His ways are not our ways. God respects the freedom He has given us. When we see what free will has wrought, perhaps we question God’s better judgment! Yet somehow, we hear that He mysteriously works all things for our good. No matter what situation we find ourselves in, we are always free to love. We are invited to be persistent in our prayer, to continue bringing our concerns before God in trusting surrender. We are invited to love well in the circumstances we find ourselves in, to be a light in the darkness. No matter when — or if — our prayers are answered the way we would like, we are nonetheless invited to witness to “faith on earth.”

EVERYDAY STEWARDSHIP

Where Is the Evidence?

The US Bishops’ pastoral letter, “Stewardship: A Disciple’s Response,” sees a life of stewardship as the fruit that comes from an authentic life with Jesus. Faith in Jesus is the minimum requirement that begins this journey from discipleship to stewardship living. There are those who believe in Jesus but do not know him. It becomes very hard to contemplate responding to the call of someone you do not know.

The last sentence of Luke 18:8 should give a reason to pause and reflect. Jesus says to his disciples, “But when the Son of Man comes, will he find faith on Earth?” We can easily respond affirmatively to the question, but if we want to look at the Earth ourselves without being able to see into people’s hearts, where is the evidence of the faith that Jesus seeks? When we look at our world, do we see evidence of large amounts of faithful people living in a way that faith would lead them to live?

Our stewardship way of life is evidence of our faith. It is hard to argue that one truly has faith if they do not seek to live as Jesus calls us. An unfortunate cycle is then created when those who do not believe do not see any reason to have faith. Our stewardship is not only evidence, but it is our testimony and witness to faith. If Jesus returned today, what would he see? Where is your evidence? Has your witness brought others to him?
